Great Blizzard Is Sweeping Chicago and the Midwest

Threatens to Break All-Time Snow Record of 19.2 Inches

TRAVELERS TIED UP

Chicago Schools Close, Exchange Breaks Its Punctual Record

CHICAGO.—(P)—A paralyzing blizzard whipped across the southern Great Lakes states and the Ohio valley Monday, burying Chicago under one of the heaviest snowfalls on record.
The forecaster at Chicago said if the storm continued all day at the severity prevalent in mid-morning the nation's second city might have snow totaling more than the existing record of 19.2 inches in March, 1931—the fall approximating one foot by 9:30 a. m.

In Chicago, all public and parochial schools were ordered closed. Thousands of commuters were late to work when suburban railroads, elevated trains, street-cars and buses were delayed.

Two Douglas park elevated trains collided in the blinding snowstorm, early police reports estimating the injured at more than 20.

The Chicago Board of Trade took the almost unprecedented action of delaying the opening of the great exchange half an hour, because traders and clerks couldn't get there on time.

52 More Jobs Are Asked for State

Legislative Committee Fails to Reach Decision Early Monday

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The joint legislative budget committee Monday was asked by the State Revenue Department to increase the department's budget for the biennium to make possible the hiring of 52 additional employees.
No decision on the request had been reached by the committee at noon.

Prohibition Fight
LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(P)—Revival of the 1937 wet-dry battle Sunday faced the Arkansas legislature in the week ahead with leaders determined to speed up consideration of major bills.

The house temperance committee will hold a public hearing Tuesday night on the proposal of Rep. John P. Vesey of Hope to return the state to outright prohibition and barring even sales of wine, beer, "tonics, bitters and medicated liquor."

Vesey's measure would repeal the 1935 liquor act and make unlawful the transportation and possession of intoxicants as well as sale. It provides a fine of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 and imprisonment of not less than 30 days or more than one year for infractions.

A similar bill by Vesey was passed in the house during the 1937 session but was tied up in a parliamentary tangle and failed to reach the senate, in time for action before adjournment. Consideration of Rep. Leo Nyberg's sales tax amendments will occupy the house Monday and general appropriation bills, passed by the senate, on Tuesday.

Other sales tax amendments introduced in the house include those by: Darnell of Phillips to require use of tokens in collection of the levy.

Rozzell of Pulaski to allocate eight school equalizing fund instead of the homestead tax exemption fund.

Woolsey of Franklin to increase the welfare allocation from 25 to 30 per cent, reduce the homestead allocation from eight to five per cent, and the

Judge Manton, Facing Impeachment, Resigns

Judge Accused of Accepting Loans During Lawsuits

Thomas Dewey Files Charge Against Federal Judge Manton

CONGRESS GETS IT

Prosecutor Dewey Presents Letter Looking to Impeachment

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Representative Sumners, Texas Democrat, said Monday he had been advised officially that Judge Martin T. Manton of the federal circuit court of appeals had resigned.
Sumners said he had received word of Manton's move from "plenty of places" but declined to say publicly what they were.
District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, charged that Manton accepted more than $400,000 from litigants.

Dewey Blasts Manton
NEW YORK.—(P)—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey charged Sunday that United States Circuit Court Judge Martin T. Manton had accepted large loans from persons and corporations who, over a long period, obtained favorable action in his court.

Dewey's charges were made in a letter to Representative Hutton W. Sumners, chairman of the judiciary committee of the house at Washington. The district attorney named the Archie Andrews interests which then controlled Dictograph Products Corporation as the source of $77,000 which he alleges the judge of the Second Circuit, one of the most important in the federal judiciary, accepted.

Others named as the sources of sums Dewey said were loaned the judge with only a small fraction repaid, were: John J. McGrath, trustee for the Prudence Company, $12,000; King's Brewery, $10,000; John L. Losch, chairman of the Fort Greene National bank of Brooklyn, $57,500; Warner Bros. Pictures, $50,000; and the American Tobacco Company $232,981.

Shaver Suit Cited
Dewey told Sumners he was prepared to appear before the committee with evidence to support the charges, adding that he had obtained his information during a state income tax investigation.

An attaché at the district attorney's office said that the statute of limitations prevented criminal prosecution under New York law except in a few cases.

Dewey said the Schick case involved a suit it instituted against Dictograph Products Corporation, another electric razor manufacturer, charging patent violations. Schick won, and Dictograph appealed. Dewey said that Archie M. Andrews controlled Dictograph and that George N. Spector, an insurance agent, was an associate and confidential agent of Andrews.

Dewey charged that shortly after the appeal was taken various large sums were paid to Spector by corporations controlled by Andrews and that Spector in turn loaned similar sums, totaling $52,000, to corporations owned or controlled by Judge Manton, and that nothing was repaid.

Immediately thereafter, Dewey said, the Circuit Court announced its decision reversing the Schick case in favor of the Andrews interests, with Judge Manton voting for the reversal. Then, beginning two days after the decision, Dewey wrote, the Andrews-Spector-Manton deals were renewed.

"In summary," said the letter, "during the period from December 21, 1936, to June 3, 1937, his corporations received a total of $77,000 from Spector. In each instance the payments could have been made by Spector only from proceeds of checks from Andrews' corporations or cash corresponding to the substantially similar withdrawal from Andrews' corporations."

"On September 1, 1938, Spector was prosecuted by my office for contempt of court for obstructing of this inquiry—the study of Judge Manton's income for tax purposes—and conviction. An appeal is now pending from this conviction."

$500,000 Involved
Dewey wrote that sums involved in the charges against Judge Manton, an appointee of the late President Roosevelt and ranked next to Supreme Court justices among American jurists, would exceed $500,000 as "there are a number of other matters similar to the foregoing which cannot be fully set forth at this stage."

Machines Replace Hand Labor in Pecan Industry to Comply With New Wage Law

Wage-hour board ruling that the pecan industry must pay the 25-cent-an-hour minimum wage means mechanization of labor, like that pictured will increase rapidly.

Wages Increase, But Two of Three Find Their Jobs Gone

But CIO Co-operates With Industry to Find Cure for South Texas' Low-Wage Pecan Industry

By NEA Service
SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—There's a miniature "industrial revolution" in the Texas pecan industry as the result of a decision by the Wages and Hours division of the Labor Department that the nut factories must pay a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour.

Faced with this rise from 15 cents an hour, an increase which the companies had said they could not pay and survive, mechanization of the industry is being speeded up.

When the mechanization is completed, it is expected that one employee will shell for his $10 a 40-hour week as many pecans as did three employees at two and three dollars. Thus the labor bill is the same, purchasing power is the same, and two out of three are out of jobs.

It won't be quite as bad as that sounds, however, for many of the workers in the pecan industry were women and children. Whole families often worked all week to produce $10. Now if the father of the family is put on a machine, and still brings home $10 at the end of the week, the kids and their mother can stay home, and they're still even.

"Machines Better Than Shutdown"
The pecan-processing industry, centering in San Antonio, has been in crisis ever since the wage-hour law went in effect. At that time leading plants shut down, claiming that 30,000 persons had been put out of jobs, and that the industry could not support a wage of 25 cents an hour.

Now they are resuming operations in a limited way, but as they resume, mechanization proceeds faster and faster. Labor leaders have already accepted the mechanization even though they realize that it means fewer jobs. That is because mechanization, and a few jobs are better than none at all. And further, total earnings will be approximately what they were before.

The partial exemption to the wage-hour law asked by the Southern Pecan Shelling Co., a leading processor, was as follows: the company proposed to pay a minimum of 15 cents an hour during a three-month learning period while workers familiarized themselves with the new machinery.

After that, 25 cents was to be paid. Even pending the decision, however, the company began experimenting with the 25-cent wage from the start, the C. I. O. union co-operating in furnishing the most capable workers available so that a minimum set production pace could be maintained.

Hands Still Useful
The advent of machinery by no

Laborious hand work by which pickers extracted eight pounds of nut-meats in an eight-hour day, as seen above, seems doomed by Wage-Hour Board's decision which is speeding up mechanization of the Texas pecan industry.

February 15 Is Deadline for Those Planting No Cotton 3 Years

B. E. McMahon, county administrative assistant of Hempstead county, has just received notice from the state AAA office that all farmers having farms on which no cotton was grown in any one of the last three years, and who wish to grow cotton in 1939 must make application for an allotment on or before the 15th of February.

New farms or farms that have not grown cotton in any one of the past three years will receive approximately 24 per cent of the cropland to be allotted to cotton, depending on intentions to plant in 1939.

Since February 15 is the final date for making application for 1939 cotton allotments, Mr. McMahon insists that all farmers affected by this notice call at the AAA office at Hope city hall and put in their application at once.

He was the father of Circuit Judge Dexter Bush of the eighth judicial circuit and had practiced law for almost half a century.

Mr. Bush was born in Pike county, where he served as county clerk before coming to Prescott in the nineties to publish the Tribune, a populist newspaper. He was admitted to the bar in 1898 and for several years his sons had been in partners in practice.

After serving in the Arkansas house from 1897 to 1899, he represented Hempstead and Nevada counties in the state senate from 1915 to 1919. Mr. Bush for many years was active

One officer was killed by police when he attempted to evade arrest, and another committed suicide.

The revolutionists were said to have planned to assassinate government leaders and restore Ananda's uncle, former King Prajadhipok, to the throne.

Guernsey School Visits Legislature

An Account of a Class's Visit to the 52nd General Assembly

At 6:30 a. m. Tuesday, January 24, the members of the class in American Government and their teacher, Hugh Bristow, of Guernsey High School left Hope for Little Rock to visit the senate of the 52nd General Assembly, having already accepted a previous invitation from Lieutenant Governor Bob Bailey, the president of the Senate of Arkansas.

The party went in cars, stopping off at the Caddo hotel in Arkadelphia for breakfast. The next stop was at the Hospital for Nervous Diseases near Benton, where the group was shown through two or three of the dormitories and instructed by a competent guide regarding the care and treatment of the unfortunate inmates. After visiting here for something like an hour, the visitors resumed their journey to Little Rock, arriving there at 11 a. m.

They went to the state capitol and spent an hour in the gallery of the House of Representatives, listening to a heated debate over some house bill concerning the tenure of office of certain state commissioners. These stu-

Power Companies' Protest Rejected by Supreme Court

"No Right to Be Free of Competition" Majority Opinion

TWO DISSENT VOTES

Justice Frankfurter Is Sworn in as New Member of Court

WASHINGTON.—(P)—The United States Supreme Court ruled Monday that 14 private power companies had no legal right to challenge the government's gigantic Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) power program.

In a decision delivered by Justice Roberts, the tribunal held that the utilities had "no right to be free of competition."

Justices Butler and McReynolds dissented at the five-to-two decision, contending it "goes too far."

The opinion gave the government the go-ahead sign for continued construction of a series of dams in the Tennessee Valley, and for the sale of surplus power produced.

Frankfurter Sworn in WASHINGTON.—(P)—A solemn ceremony made Vienna-born Felix Frankfurter a member of the United States Supreme Court Monday.

Death Sentence Upheld
LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday affirmed the death sentence of Joseph B. Anderson, 31-year-old former convict, for the robbery-slitting of a Hot Springs grocery clerk official in September, 1938, but granted a reversal for his wife, 33-year-old Lucille Anderson, who also had been condemned to die for the slaying.

They were accused with others with seizing 26-year-old Eldon Cooley, on a Hot Springs street after he had completed collections from a chain of grocery stores and killing him in nearby mountains, after robbing him.

Series of Week-End Robberies in Hope

Homes of S. C. Bundy and A. B. Spraggins Are Robbed

The Hope police department Monday was confronted with a series of residential robberies and attempted robberies here Saturday night.

The home of Sid Bundy, 1303 South Main, was entered and approximately $8 in cash was taken.

The home of A. B. Spraggins, 1301 South Main, was entered and approximately $10 in loot, mostly old coins and bills, was missing.

An attempt was made to enter the home of Mrs. W. F. Broening, West Fifth street, but the robber was frightened away.

The Boswell home on South Washington street was also the scene of an attempted robbery. The robber flashed a light into a room and then fled.

At the Bundy and Spraggins homes on South Main, the robber apparently was searching only for money. At the Spraggins home the robber entered the house through a dining room window.

When inside the house, he opened the front door and also a rear door to make a quick get-away. He then located about $10 in old coins and left. Mr. Spraggins was sleeping in the house at the time, but did not discover the robbery until Sunday morning.

Police have no clues.

Expanding Public Domain May Solve Land Problems.

Just at the time when everybody was getting accustomed to the idea that "the public domain is exhausted," to behold the public domain starts growing again.

Public ownership of land is gaining by leaps and bounds, not only as a result of widespread purchase by the federal and state governments, but by tax foreclosure.

For example, in 1938 Oregon owned 1,714,349 acres of land, with another 20,000,000 worth foreclosable because of tax delinquency.

Almost every state is faced with this problem in one degree or another. In little New Jersey nearly 900,000 acres of rural land are tax delinquent, a survey shows.

This state of things, regardless of whether it is happy state or not, is a condition and not a theory.

States and counties are being forced to take steps to find out what to do with this newly acquired land, the American Society of Planning Officials reports. In 29 states foreclosed or abandoned land reverts to the counties, and in 19 states it reverts to the state.

That makes necessary a different approach to the problem in almost every case, for while counties are closer in touch with the local problem of the use of their land, most of them do not have enough money or enough land to institute much of a program.

Minnesota, Michigan, New York and Wisconsin classify the reverted lands as to whether it can produce anything, and whether it can be sold. Then they try to homestead, sell or exchange the land. Such lands as are useless for such purposes are usually turned into parks or game refuges.

Exchange of land with the federal government so as to unite larger areas so they can be used for public or private purposes is going on.

The United States, and the individual states are thus rapidly acquiring a new and large public domain. The problem would seem to be to get to some of this land those farmers who no longer can find a place on developed lands, the migratory workers, the sharecroppers, and the disposed of the farm areas.

Starting at scratch, with land which cost the governments nothing but the loss of tax revenues, it should be possible to get much of this land back into hands of individual owners, thus accomplishing the double object of producing more taxes and giving farm families a new start. Homesteaders built the country in the first place—maybe a new generation of homesteaders can help to rebuild it.

Diagnosis of Diseases Affecting Fingernails and Toenails

It has been said that the fingernails reflect diseases that affect the body as a whole. There are diseases that specifically concern the nails themselves.

One of the most extraordinary conditions is enlargement of the nail which may affect one more nail at the same time, usually of the toes rather than of the fingers. Under such circumstances the nail becomes overgrown, thickened, and greenish or blackish in color.

It becomes so hard it cannot be easily cut, and finally gets bent over an curve. This condition usually affects quite old people who are kept in bed because of disease or weakness. Occasionally, however, it will affect the young.

There is not much that can be done about this condition except to soften the hardening nail by soaking it in oil or in paraffin, and then paring the nail down.

Many people become concerned about the white lines that run across the nail which are in indication usually that something has interfered temporarily with the growth of the nail. It takes from five to six months for one of these white lines to pass from the bottom of the nail to the tip. By the position of the line at the time when it is first seen, the doctor can calculate when the patient had something that interfered with the growth of the nails. For instance, in a severe disease like influenza, pneumonia or anemia, there may be great interference with the growth of the nail, lessening its vitality and producing such a white line.

Lines forming lengthwise on the nails are usually associated with rheumatic conditions or with infections of the body or with nervous disorders or with some disturbances of the glands. Another, queer disturbance of the nail is the development of the concave rather than a convex nail. These are sometimes called "spoon nails." It has been found that in some cases this is a family disease and will occur in several generations of the same family.

In other cases there may be white spots on the nails, so sometimes a whole nail will look as though it had been stippled with white paint. This condition is called leukonychia. Its exact cause is not known, but it seems to be a hereditary condition associated in some instances with nerve disturbances. It may be due to injury of the matrix of the nail caused by pushing the cuticle back too severely in manicuring.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Cotton

Whatever happens to the Nazis ultimately, they will have put into the records a rare brand of ideology, compounded of racial hatred, regimentation and the exhortations of a Fuehrer sitting on the right-hand of the Almighty.

All in all it adds up to a pretty ridiculous picture, aside from its more grim aspects, and nothing so convincing as a striking little book just off the Laveright press, "Lunacy Becomes Us," by Adolf Hitler and Associates. It sells for $1.25.

You have only to glance at it, of course, to see that neither Adolf nor Herr Goebbels sponsored the book. It was put together by a woman with a strictly Aryan sense of humor, Clara Leiser, and Miss Leiser lets the Nazi with and wisdom stumble where it may. Collected from the leading Nazi speeches, orders, editorials, articles, sermons, dogma of the last five years, the "genius" Miss Leiser offers are striding, or as President Roosevelt might say, "I myself could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a 20th-century civilization." For instance: "On the pleasures of hunger—Through mastication avoids needless waste and payment of unnecessary expense to foreign countries." On the German state—"Even in the German street the new spirit is visible. . . . The ash cans are lined up as if standing at attention."

Or if you want to sing out the news: "Not the discovery of America, not with the Reformation were the Middle Ages ended, but with Adolf's coming into power."

Such is Miss Leiser's collection. It is probably the best exposition of Nazi Germany we shall see for a long time.

Soil Supervisors Will Be Elected

One Man From Hempstead, Nevada and Lafayette to be Named

Election of three supervisors of the Terre Rouge-Bolivar Soil Conservation District will be held in Hempstead, Nevada and Lafayette counties on February 11, 1939, according to Riley Lewallen, acting chairman of the board of supervisors.

Two supervisors were appointed by the state committee at the time the charter for the Terre Rouge-Bolivar Soil Conservation District was granted by the secretary of state. These two men, Mr. Lewallen of Hope and Mr. J. T. Adams of Laneburg, have called an election of three other supervisors to serve with them as a board of five supervisors of the district.

Mr. Lewallen states that it has been mutually agreed for each county involved to have a representative on the board of supervisors. Hempstead and Nevada counties will have two each due to the large acreage of land in each county included within the district.

Mr. Lewallen called attention to the fact that only qualified electors will be permitted to vote. All legal voters will be permitted to vote regardless of property ownership. The following polls will be open on Saturday, February 11, 1939, from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.:

Hempstead county: Blovin, DeAnn, Fulton, Hope, Sardis, Washington, Belton, Beards Chapel, Palmos, Columbus, Cross Roads, Bingen, McCaskill, Piney Grove, Spring Hill, Shover Springs, Guernsey, Ozon, and Sweet Home.

Nevada county: Caney, church, Bodsworth, school, Willshire, Warmack's store, Sutton, store; Rosston, church; Glenville, Byrd's store; New Hope, church; Bluff City, Laneburg, school; Emmet, postoffice building; Prescott, court house; Liberty, church; Caroline, church.

Lafayette county: State Line, Oak Grove, Stamps, Lewisville, Center, Walker's Creek, Mt. Pleasant, Mays Hill, Buckner, and Midway.

Ballots will be available at voting places mentioned.

Guernsey School

When the house was adjourned by the Speaker of the House for the noon hour the Guernsey party went downtown to lunch, returning to the capitol building at 1:30. At this time they went to the senate, where Principal Hugh Bristow contacted the Senator from Hempstead county, the Hon. James H. Pilkinton, who welcomed the visitors and presented the sponsor of the class to Lieutenant Governor Bob Bailey. After the exchange of greetings, Mr. Bailey informed Mr. Bristow that he and his students were fortunate indeed to have visited the senate at that particular hour, saying in part "your party will have the rare privilege of witnessing the election of a president pro tem of the senate soon after we convene at 2 o'clock."

A few minutes after this formal procedure, the able and popular young senator from Hempstead asked and received permission from the affable and gracious president to introduce the visitors from Guernsey High School. Then followed an hour and a half of tense excitement for the occupants of the packed galleries which overflowed the floor of the senate chamber where the walls were lined with other interested spectators. Only once during this entire period did President Bailey have to ask the sergeant at arms to warn an over-enthusiastic bystander to quiet down.

Soon after the election of Senator Milum, dean of Arkansas senate, as president pro tem, the delegation from Guernsey took their leave, but not before they witnessed another pleasant surprise, that of the appointment of their young Senator James H. Pilkinton as temporary president of the upper house of the Arkansas legislature by his seemingly very close friend, Lieutenant Governor Bailey.

Just before leaving the state capital the sponsor of the class stopped at Lieutenant Governor Bailey's office and thanked him for his kind invitation and thoughtful considerations during two hours of instructive entertainment.

Then, the party motored over to North Little Rock, thence out on highway 5 to what is locally called the Old Mill where the group saw several odd and unique objects of architecture made of concrete and other materials but resembling the handiwork of Mother Nature. Some of the objects of art which were constructed by an architect brought from Old Mexico were as follows: A huge old stump which was so carved out that five or six persons can comfortably sit down in it at one time; a little bridge made of split logs and a footlog whose top surface had been hewn down to insure safe walking; a large flower basket placed out on a tiny inlet in the brook; a giant round stool that resembled a big umbrella unfurled under which several people could stand or sit—all of which looked as if they were constructed of wood by the hand of a genius and later became petrified by the hand of God.

After visiting in this wonderful place for a half hour or so, the sight-seekers drove around the country side until they grew tired and hungry, returning to the Capital City in time for dinner, after which they spent an enjoyable hour and a half at the Capital Theater where "The Duke at West Point" was showing at that time.

At 9 p. m. the students of the political science class of Guernsey High School set out for Hempstead county and home, stopping off at both Maysville and Gurdon to satisfy their ever-hungry appetite but finally arriving in Hope at 1:30 a. m. where they separated and went to their respective homes. A group of young, political-minded people who will be better citizens of tomorrow for having spent such a happy but instructive nineteen hours in their youth.

Students who accompanied their teachers on this memorable trip were Sam Hugheson, Ray Clanton, Dallas Cox, Saner Davis, Henry Hayes, Lottie Boyce, Dorothy Hamilton, Leta Thomas, Grace Tomlin and Margaret Wylie.

Today's Traffic Story—Told by Camera

Skidding automobiles, frantic efforts of drivers and pedestrians to escape injury—then a body hurled across the street by the impact of wheel or bumper. It's a common occurrence in the daily drama of city traffic, but rarely is the camera on the spot to register the story as strikingly as in the above picture taken in Ogden, Utah. Glen Stamos has just been knocked beneath a parked car by the laundry truck that has skidded to a stop at left. Stamos escaped serious injury.

bill by Rep. J. Frank Williams of Mississippi county to tax telephone companies $35 annually for each coin telephone they operate.

Two bills by Toney also will come before the group. One provides for licensing by the state board of health of all hospitals and the other is a retaliatory measure on states taxing Arkansas farm products.

The latter measure would place a 25 per cent tax against certain agricultural products of Washington, Minnesota, Wisconsin and which Toney said had levied a tax on Arkansas products, including oil and its byproducts.

The house revenue and taxation committee will meet early in the week to consider a proposed two-cent per package slash in the cigarette tax. A similar bill met defeat in 1937 in the house, school forces charging it would reduce school revenues.

Writers Believe Crax Will Repeat

Southern Association Baseball Writers Forecast the Winners

ATLANTA, Ga. —(AP)—Five out of eight baseball writers polled by the Constitution favored the Atlanta Crackers to win the 1939 Southern Association pennant.

One writer favored Nashville, which will go to the post for the first time under the leadership of Larry Gilbert, while two said it was "too early" to hazard an opinion.

Writers favoring Atlanta, which has won the pennant three out of the last four years, were Fred Russell, Nashville Banner; Jack House, Birmingham News; Tom Anderson, Knoxville Journal; Dave Bloom, Memphis Commercial Appeal; and Ben Epstein, Arkansas Gazette.

Wirt Gammon, Chattanooga Times, and Pic Dufour, New Orleans Item-Tribune, said that it was too early to offer a consensus on the 1939 finish.

Allen Tilden, Arkansas Democrat, selected Nashville to top the league.

In his consensus of the finish, Russell favored Knoxville to climb out of the cellar and nominated New Orleans for the last-place berth. New Orleans never finished out of the first division in the 19 years Gilbert was at the helm. Russell listed Knoxville seventh and New Orleans eighth.

means eliminates hand labor in picking nut-meats from the cracked shells. It merely carries the process far enough along so that production per worker is much increased. Eight pounds of nut-meats in an eight-hour day was regarded as a good day's work for hand-shellers. The machines cost from $300 to $500 a piece, and makers claim from 24 to 32 pounds per workers per day with machines.

The peanut industry, for years a scene of strikes and labor trouble, has been built on wage scales as low as five and 10 cents an hour. Easy availability of a "labor supply" of Mexican girls with comparatively low living standards, combined with hot competition from Brazil nuts and cashews from India, have helped preserve the low labor standards of the industry.

Fertilizer Firm Missed by Quake

Chilean Nitrate Industry Not Affected by Recent Earthquake

News that the recent earthquake in Chile in no way affected the Chilean Nitrate of Soda industry is welcomed by farmers and agricultural workers of the Southern States.

Because of the importance of Chilean Nitrate of agriculture in the United States, particularly to the South, press dispatches concerning the disaster, aside from arousing wide news interest and sympathy, had caused some speculation as to the disaster's effect upon the supply of this widely used fertilizer.

Mines, plants and transportation properties of the nitrate industry are entirely outside the area affected by the earthquake.

"No damage whatever has occurred to affect the industry in which so much American capital is interested and on which so many American farmers depend," declares a spokesman for the industry.

"The earthquake zone is more than 500 mile south of the nitrate fields. All nitrate facilities are in northern Chile. The disaster, with its tragic loss of life, was confined to a relatively small area in the southern portion of Chile. Farmers in America, and throughout the world, who look to this natural fertilizer for aid in crop production, need feel no concern. The nitrate supply is in no way affected by the disaster which has struck southern Chile."

Lost Ducks Get Lift From Game Warden

LETHBRIDGE, Alberta. —(AP)—More than 500 ducks that apparently had lost their migratory instinct, recently were captured on Buffalo lake, near here, and sent by truck to open water in Montana.

W. H. Wallace, head of the Alberta game commission, said the ducks remained at the lake even after the area of open water had diminished to about 20 square feet.

"They would have frozen to death," Wallace said. "It was impossible for all of the ducks to get into the water at one time. The result was that many of the ducks stood for long periods on the ice and became weak from lack of proper nourishment."

SERIAL STORY NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Barney McKnight returned shortly after Aunt Mary died and Janet told him how much she loved him. He told her what Aunt Mary once said to him about Janet's future.

CHAPTER XX
"I REMEMBER every word Aunt Mary said," Barney put a big hand over her tightly clasped fingers. "She said, 'Janet doesn't know her own mind now, Barney. But if anything should happen to me, I think you will be the first one she will turn to. If you can persuade her to marry you then, don't wait—even if I should still be lying in state—out of a mistaken respect for convention. I don't worry about Cynthia now. She's shown more sense than I ever gave her credit for. And if I know that Janet is with you, I can stretch out in my grave and take a good nap.'"

This from Aunt Mary, who never meddled with other people's lives!

She must have known, Janet thought, touched beyond words. Something must have told her. A loud she said, "But, Barney, all along it has seemed to me that what you and I have is something so much finer and saner and less complicated than the feeling people seem to mean when they talk about—love and marriage."

"Now don't tell me, Jan," Barney interrupted with a flash of something like his old humorous impatience, "that you've been kidding yourself with that old tripe about platonic friendship. There isn't any such thing."

"But I never thought—" Janet began again.

"Well, begin thinking about it now."

When she only continued to shake her head helplessly, he took his hand from hers.

"All right, forget it," he said. "I suppose, after all, thinking doesn't do much good about things like this. You either know or you don't. Forget it, Jan."

JANET, who had found in the shelter of Barney's arms the first real comfort and rest she had known for weeks, felt newly bereft and deserted.

"Barney," she began, "why can't we go on—just the way we always—"

But he had got abruptly to his feet.

"I'll run along now, Jan," he said. "You're too tired for this. You get yourself some rest. I'll have some supper sent in for you, and come back later to see if there is anything I can do."

But Janet's hands had found his coat sleeves, and were clinging with all her strength.

"Don't go, Barney," she cried against his shoulder. "Please don't leave me—ever again. It kills me just to have you here."

Barney laughed at Janet's confession over that.

His first one had appeared the day before. Already the News had received a flood of comment—some cordial letters of approbation, some attacking the policy of the paper in exposing the scandal as "muck-raking" and some crank notes—an anonymous threat, which the paper gleefully published.

It was in turning over the pages of the News that she happened to glance at the story of the most recent financial disaster. A nationally known oil company had gone into a receivership. It meant very little to her at the time, and hardly engaged her attention, for she was looking for Barney's second article.

Janet was deep in the page of "Letters from Readers" that afternoon, looking eagerly for further comments on Barney's articles, when a key turned in the lock of the hall door, and someone came in and down the hallway.

"Why, Barney, you're early!" Janet called. "I hope you're not playing hooky."

But it wasn't Barney. Cynthia, paler than usual, came quietly into the room.

She smiled her twisted little smile, took her hat a little wearily from her head, and flung it on a low table.

"Well, Jan," she said, "here I am again."

"Cynthia, darling!" Jan cried, and ran to throw her arms about her cousin in a warm rush of gladness.

Cynthia said, "Jan honey—you poor kid! Tell me everything!" and they sat down together on Aunt Mary's gold brocade Empire sofa.

When Janet had told her everything, Cynthia said brokenly, "I should have been here. . . . We did change our plans as soon as we got your message about the accident; but it had followed us for days. We were just lucky in making connections to get here even this soon."

"I tried so hard to reach you, Cyn. It was you she wanted really," Janet said, entirely without jealousy. She had always known that.

She was thinking, Cynthia had changed.

She couldn't put her finger on the exact difference, but it was as unmistakable as Cynthia's actual presence here. It showed in the way she had come into the room, in the tones of her voice. It was not exactly that she seemed older. If anything, Janet thought, Cynthia was, for perhaps the first time in her life, really beautiful. Something had happened to her, Janet thought.

Porkers to Tackle Baylor This Week

Two Southwest Conference Games at Fayetteville This Week

DALLAS, Texas.—(P)—Boiled down to a one-team show by mid-term inactivity, the Southwest Conference cage race, for the second week, belongs to Baylor's sophomores.

Nestled in second place after triumphs over Texas Christian and Rice Institute in last week's only games, the Baylors move up to Arkansas' hideout in the Ozark Hills next Friday and Saturday.

The Baylor-Arkansas series sums up the week's activity, five other teams, including Southern Methodist's unbeaten leaders, wrestling with mid-term examinations.

Pean Pete Cressy celebrated his election as Baylor's captain by clogging the basket down at Rice Saturday night with nine field goals, an item that brought in a 44-42 Baylor triumph and dropped Rice down to this place. The hawk-eyed Baylor forward pulled his scoring antics early to keep Baylor a few points in front.

The Owls, scrapping back behind the spectacular one-handed long range shooting of Frankie Carswell, the sophomore scoring specialist, nudged up a 38-38 tie in the fading minutes but Grady Vaughn, Baylor forward, dropped his only field goal of the evening to put Baylor ahead and they stayed there through the wild closing minutes.

Carswell, whose leaping, one-hand shots from outside the foul circle haven't been stopped to date, canned six more to increase his season total to 70 points—16 ahead of Levi Craddock, a teammate.

Earlier in the week Texas Christian, perennial basement dwellers, gave further proof that something is about to be done about their plight. Blasted off the court by the Baylors in the first half, the Purples perked up and barely dropped a 35-31 decision after a snorting comeback.

Out of the race after dropping three early season games, Arkansas, defending champions, have a chance to climb back in the first division in the Baylor series but few believed Baylor would come out of the Forker series with less than an even break.

Bad Weather Stops O'Brien's Passing

Pro All-Stars Defeat Collegians at San Francisco, 6 to 0

KEZAR STADIUM, SAN FRANCISCO.—A nine-yard touchdown sprint by Ray Clemmons, formerly of Oklahoma A. and M. College, gave the National All-Star professional football team a 6-0 victory over the West Coast collegians in their charity game in the wind and rain at Kezar Stadium Sunday.

Five thousand watersoaked fans came out to see a heralded passing duel between little Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian University and Billy Patterson of Baylor. But the slippery ball and the wet field nullified their best efforts.

The touchdown came late in the third period. George Smith, formerly of the Washington Redskins, intercepted one of O'Brien's passes at midfield and lateraled to Clemmons, who ran to the collegians' 19-yard line.

Bill Howard and Ray Peterson, former USC backs, hammered the ball forward to a first down on the nine-yard line.

Clemmons, in the tailback spot at the right, slanted to the left and took a reverse from Howard. The Western collegians were caught napping and Clemmons scored standing up. Howard's attempted conversion was blocked.

The professionals geared their defense to stop O'Brien's passes with a five-man line and a double row of three defenders behind it. Johnny Hall of Texas Christian and Jim Coughan of Santa Clara, the best pass-catchers of the collegians, were watched by two men each.

O'Brien attempted 10 passes. He completed three. Six were incomplete and one was intercepted. O'Brien was tossed for losses several times when he held the ball rather than risk interceptions when his receivers were covered.

Patterson, who started in the East-West game herb New Year's Day, tried 11 passes.

Take Calotabs to Help Nature Throw off Colds

Millions have found in Calotabs a most valuable aid in the treatment of colds. They take one or two tablets the first night and repeat the third or fourth night if needed.

How do Calotabs help Nature throw off a cold? First, Calotabs are one of the most thorough and dependable of all intestinal eliminants, thus cleansing the intestinal tract of any virus-laden mucus and toxins.

Second, Calotabs are diuretic to the kidneys, promoting the elimination of cold poisons from the blood. Thus Calotabs serve the double purpose of a purgative and diuretic, both of which may be needed in the treatment of colds.

Calotabs are quite economical; only twenty-five cents for the family package, ten cents for the trial package—(adv.)
